

Mission Statement and Goals

by: Anthony Sandoval

My Favorite Quotes

- Nothing is impossible
- Be in love with your life, every detail of it
- Your mind is a powerful thing, when you fill it with positive thoughts, your life will start to change
- Every new day is a chance to change your life
- When life throws you curves embrace them
- Dear whoever is reading this, you're beautiful and someone out there is crazy about you. So smile. Life is too short to be unhappy.

My Role Models

My role models are my parents. Because all my life they have tried to raise me the right way. And they always try to do their best for the family. That is why they really inspire me and also because they both had a rough childhoods in growing up in Mexico and they still managed to become great respectful people.

What I believe

I believe in Jesus Christ and I have been raised to believe in him so I do what I have been taught. I believe that he is our savior. I believe everything that the Nicene Creed mentions. I believe everything that Roman Catholic teaches and practices.

My Principles

My principle is respect. I need to the respect from others first if they expect me to do the same back. This is my only principle that I really stand up for.

My Motto

Yolo is my motto and I believe in it because you only live once so you got to live your life. That is why this is my motto because that is the truth.

Mission Statement in 10 minutes

My mission statement would be for me and it would be to become a better person and try to improve myself everyday and try to become good in whatever way or thing that I need improvement on. Like I only live once so I would have to take advantage of that too and for me to live my life the way that is the best. This would be my mission statement.

Academic Goals

My academic goals are to pass my classes with A's. I plan on doing this by studying and being on the top of my studies because that would be the only way I can be on the top. This is how I would achieve my academic goal and try to get A's in my classes and try to pass them with that goal.

Personal Goals

I would try change my ways and bad habits because this new school would not tolerate these things so I have to be careful of what I do. I would try to do this things by being a little better each day until it becomes normal to me and I would get used to this new way that I would act at my new school.

Spiritual Goals

Maybe for spiritual goals I would try to meditate because I have never tried doing that. And I would try to start praying every night to thank God that I haven't been shot yet and that am still alive. So I have to thank God that he has still chosen to keep me alive. These are some of my spiritual goals.

What I want in a future Partner

I have never really thought how I want my future partner to be like because I haven't thought about marrying yet but if I had to pick how my future would look like she would at least need to be bomb. I think that looks do matter because I would not want to marry an ugly girl she would need to have other stuff but they are kind of inappropriate.

Accountability Partner

My dad would be my accountability partner because he would be the person that would get me the farthest and help me accomplish my goals better than others. I say that because he was the only one from my whole family that almost graduated from college everyone else didn't even bother in going and having an education. That is why my dad would be my accountability partner.
